In this time of convergent crises and social unrest – COVID-19 and America’s reawakening to realities of racial and economic injustice —this forum provides a space for discussion of a re-imagined American education system centered on principles of equity, fairness, and expansion of opportunity. Schools can’t do America’s work alone; but America’s work can’t advance without its schools. Our goal is to surface, for continued discussion, opportunities and obstacles to imagining large-scale institutional change in American public education.
